Indiana's governor, Oliver P. Morton met with fifty private citizens to make plans for a state soldiers' home. $20,000 was raised through private contibutions. In September 1866, fifty-four acres of land and some buildings south of Knightstown at Knightstown Springs were purchased and thus began the Soldiers' and Seamen's Home. In late 1866, it was suggested that the State take over the institution. George Merritt, an Indianapolis businessman, was concerned with the orphans left by the Civil War. In November 1865, Mr. Merritt hired Susan Fussell to care for four soldiers' orphans in two rooms at the Military Hospital in Indianapolis. By April 1966, there were ten children, who along with Miss Fussell, moved to Knightstown Springs. In 1867 the institution became the Home for Disabled Veterans. After a fire in 1871, the veterans were moved to the National Military Home at Dayton, Ohio. Since that beginning, over 11,000 children have lived and attended school. The home has had various names, at one time is was called the Indiana Soldiers' and Sailors' Orphans' Home, but is now known as the Indiana Soldiers' and Sailors' Childrens' Home.

This volume is an index to six sets of records from the Indiana Soldiers' and Sailors' Children's Home:

(1) Applications for Admission. A printed form containing information on applicants for admission. These are not available for all children; the amount of information varies application by application. Ideally every application contains the following: date of application; date of acceptance; date of admission; date of doctor's examination; child's name; name of person or persons asking for the child's admission; county of child's residence; father's name; his military service; mother's name; mother's maiden name; other names of mother; names and ages of siblings; and a doctor's report. There are admission applications for children who were never admitted for a variety of reasons. These forms are arranged in alphabetical order in the Indiana State Archives.

(2) Admission Book. A ledger book with children's names arranged in chronological order. Almost every child is listed in the Admission Book. Early records are sparse and sometimes duplicated. Information usually found: child's name; child's age; child's birthday; names of parents; address of parents; father's and/or mother's military record; date of admission; county from which admitted; and remarks. Some children are listed who do not appear in the discharge books. This book is at the Children's Home; a microfilm is available in the Indiana State Archives. The books are handwritten. Children admitted after 1980 are not listed in this index.

(3) Discharge Books. Two ledger books with children's names arranged in chronological order. Almost every child is listed in the discharge books. Information contained: child's name; child's age; date of dismissal; reason for dismissal; person taking child from home; and remarks. These books are at the Children's Home; a microfilm is available in the Indiana State Archives. Discharges for children admitted prior to 1980 are listed in this index.

(4) Discharge Cards. These cards, arranged in alphabetical order, were kept from approximately 1937 to 1954. Information on the card is: child's name; child's date of birth; remarks. Remarks sometimes include information about parents or persons taking the child from the school.

(5) School Record Cards. These records are on cards filed in alphabetical order by the child's name. The originals are in the Indiana State Archives; they are available on microfilm. They are typewritten. Information included: father's name; his birth date and birthplace; his address; his military record; his other marriages, if any; mother's name; her birth date and birthplace; her address; her military record, if any; her other marriages, if any; child's name, birth date and birthplace; names, birth dates, and birthplaces of child's siblings; address of child; county from which admitted; discharge date; and notes.

(6) Indenture Papers. Very few of these exist; they contain very little information other than the dates and names of persons involved. Indenture papers are filed with the applications for admission in the Indiana State Archives. Children for whom such papers are available are marked with an *.

Differences in spellings are noted in the index with cross-references to other entries. When two or more dates and/or counties are shown for a child, it means that different information was given in the various records. Occasionally a child was officially accepted in one year, but did not arrive until early the next year. Some children were admitted and dismissed more than once. Dates in brackets [ ] have been obtained from other sources.

Abbreviations used:
AA = Applications for Admission
AB = Admission Book
DB = Discharge Books
DC = Discharge Cards
SR = School Record Cards.
